INFORMATION ABOUT THIS APPLICATION FORM

Information about you

If you are living overseas or interstate, please include your email address to assist us in contacting you if we require further information.

Information about the adoption

The Department of Communities and Justice (DCJ) hold the memorandum of adoption for adoptions that took place in NSW. If the adoption occurred in another state, you must apply to that state for adoption Information, even if the child was born in NSW.

Section 1: Adoption Information Certificate (AIC)

The AIC will be the first piece of documentation you receive and it enables you to apply to other agencies for more information. In order to obtain social and medical information you must have an AIC, Supply Authority or Original Birth Certificate (issued under the Adoption Information Act 1990).

Section 2: Social and medical information

Adopted people can receive social and medical information, which is information that was provided by the birth parent(s) at the time of the adoption. Social and medical information is not current information and there may be limited records of birth parent/s sharing information about their family medical history. The only way adopted people can access current information, would be through connecting with their birth parent(s) or other birth family members.

Birth parents will receive information about their child and their adoptive parents at the time of the adoption.

DCJ holds files for adoptions that were arranged through the department from the mid 1950s onwards and files for a number of adoption agencies that have now closed down. If the adoption was arranged through a private adoption agency, the AIU will give you details of the agency so you can contact them directly to seek information.

Section 3: Reunion and Information Register (RIR)

Adopted people over 18 years, birth parents and adoptive parents are eligible to have their names recorded on the RIR and/or to leave messages for other parties to the adoption.

Adopted children over the age of 12 years and under the age of 18 years may place their name on the register with their adoptive parents' consent, or DCJ is satisfied special circumstances exist.

Other people who have an interest in an adopted person or birth parent can apply to have their name placed on the RIR. These people include: putative birth fathers, siblings, grandparents, aunts, uncles and close friends.

The RIR is a passive means of making contact. The department does not search for the person you are looking for – the other person must indicate their willingness to make contact by also joining the RIR. If a match between two parties occur on the RIR, a reunion will be facilitated by the Adoption Information Unit.

If you receive identifying adoption information, you can do your own searches and make contact whether or not you join the RIR.
