THREE NSW LAWYERS APPOINTED TO DISTRICT COURT

Three accomplished NSW lawyers have been appointed to the District Court of NSW, each bringing to the court a depth of knowledge and experience as legal practitioners.

Huw Baker SC, William Fitzsimmons SC and Pauline David will join the ranks of the judiciary after outstanding careers in the legal profession, spanning many decades.

Attorney General Mark Speakman said Mr Baker, Mr Fitzsimmons and Ms David are all highly skilled practitioners who have dedicated their careers to the service of the law and the pursuit of just outcomes.

“In carrying out their duties as District Court judges, they will each continue to draw on the considerable skill, experience and knowledge they have gained as lawyers, for the benefit of the court and the community it serves,” Mr Speakman said.

Huw Baker SC will be sworn in on 21 July 2022, William Fitzsimmons on 28 July 2022 and Pauline David on 1 August 2022.
